

The Tobenski-Algera Concert Series

633 W. 142nd St., #3F, New York, NY 10031 ▪ (815) 953-1979 ▪ www.tobenskialgera.com ▪ info@tobenskialgera.com

For immediate release
For information: (815) 953-1979

Headline

(New York City, NY) – On Saturday, October 27 at 7:30 pm, the Tobenski-Algera Concert Series, an organization devoted to the presentation of new musical works by young American composers, will present a concert of new piano trios and songs. The concert will take place at the Bloomingdale School of Music, which is located at 323 W. 108th Street. The concert will feature works by composers Jeff Algera, Clint Borzoni, Daron Hagen, Hadar Noiberg, Darien Shulman, and Dennis Tobenski. Performing will be pianist Marc Peloquin, pianist/tenor Robert Frankenberry, violinist Roger Zahab, cellist David Russell, and tenor Dennis Tobenski.

Admission to the concert is $10, $8 for students with a valid ID.

The Tobenski-Algera Concert Series, founded by composers Dennis Tobenski and Jeff Algera, is devoted to the presentation of new works by young and emerging composers. The series had presented over a dozen substantial new works since its inception in April 2006. Notably, the series premiered the piano-vocal version of David Del Tredici's song cycle Gay Life in June 2007, with the composer at the piano, to a warm review in the New York Times, which called the performance "dynamic" and "engaging." More information is available online at www.tobenskialgera.com, via email at info@tobenskialgera.com, or by calling 815-953-1979.

###